

CURRICULUM VITE TRUBIANI CATIA

Catia Trubiani is Assistant Professor at the Gran Sasso Science Institute, Italy. She received the National Qualification as Associate Professor in two areas: INF/01 and ING-INF/05. She received a Ph.D. in Computer Science from the University of L'Aquila, Italy, with a dissertation on the automated of architectural feedback from software performance analysis results. Before joining the Gran Sasso Science Institute, she has been with various international research institutes like the Imperial College of London (UK) and the Karlsruhe Institute of Technology (Germany). Her research interests include the quantitative modeling and analysis of interacting heterogeneous distributed systems. Among various national and international projects in which she has been involved, she is principal investigator of the GSSI unit for the MIUR-PRIN project SEDUCE (Young Line action).